This letter is to inform you of this incident, the steps we have taken in response, and the steps that you may want to consider to help protect your affected information.

What Happened?

On March 17, 2026, the Company detected suspicious activity on part of its information technology (IT) systems that appears to have resulted from malicious activity on March 16, 2026 that targeted one of the Company’s employees. The Company immediately began an investigation and hired external computer forensic specialists to help determine what occurred and what data may have been impacted. To help prevent a similar occurrence in the future, the Company has implemented a number of measures designed to enhance the security of our IT systems and data stored in those systems. An extended fraud alert stays on your credit report for seven years. To place a fraud alert on your credit reports, contact one of the nationwide credit bureaus. A fraud alert is free. The credit bureau you contact must tell the other two, and all three will place an alert on their versions of your report.
