

Legacy Bank and Trust – Notice of Privacy Incident

Legacy Bank and Trust (“Legacy”) is providing notification of an event that may involve information related to certain individuals affiliated with Legacy. Although Legacy has no evidence that any information has been used to commit identity theft or fraud, Legacy is providing information and resources to help individuals protect their information from possible misuse, should they feel it appropriate to do so.

What Happened? Legacy recently completed its investigation into a cyber event involving unauthorized access to an employee email account that occurred on May 21, 2026. As part of this investigation, we worked with third-party specialists to complete a time-intensive and comprehensive review of the emails and attachments that may have been accessed. Legacy is notifying individuals based on the results of this review.

What Information Was Affected? The information stored within the affected Legacy email account may include Social Security numbers, financial account information, driver’s license or other government issued identification, tax identification number, and login information. Legacy is not aware of any attempted or actual misuse of personal information and is providing individuals with notification and access to services in an abundance of caution.

What Legacy is Doing. In response to this event, Legacy took steps to secure its email tenant and conducted a detailed investigation to confirm the full nature and scope of the event. Legacy is working to review and enhance technological safeguards as part of its ongoing commitment to data security.
