IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF WASHINGTON
KING COUNTY

HARRISON MA, on his own behalf and on behalf of others similarly situated,

Plaintiff,

vs.

NIKE, INC.,

Defendant.

Case No.:

CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

15 Plaintiff Harrison Ma, on his own behalf and on behalf of others similarly situated, on 16 information and belief except to his own experiences and matters of public record, complains of 17 Defendant Nike, Inc., as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

18
19 1. In 1998, to protect Washington consumers from the annoyance and harassment
20 caused by the burgeoning spam email industry, the Washington State Legislature enacted the 21 Commercial Electronic Mail Act (CEMA), codified at chapter 190 of title 19 of the Revised Code
22 of Washington (RCW).

23 2. Among other things, CEMA prohibits transmitting a commercial email to a
24 Washington resident's email address that "[c]ontains false or misleading information in the subject
25 line." RCW 19.190.020(1)(b).

26 3. Defendant Nike, Inc., does just what CEMA prohibits.

27 4. Nike bombards Washington consumers, including Plaintiff, with commercial

1 emails whose subject lines employ various tactics to create a false sense of urgency in consumers'
2 minds.

3 5. This false urgency wastes consumers' time by enticing them to engage with Nike's
4 marketing for fear of missing out and chokes consumers' email inboxes with repeated false
5 notifications that consumers' time to act is short.

6 6. Plaintiff brings this action to put a stop to Nike's harassment of Washington
7 consumers with deceptive marketing and to remedy the injuries Nike has already caused.

8 II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

9 7. The Court has jurisdiction of this case under RCW 2.08.010.

10 8. Venue is proper in King County under RCW 4.12.020(3) because Plaintiff's cause
11 of action or some part thereof arose in King County.

12 III. PARTIES

13 9. Plaintiff Harrison Ma is a resident of King County, Washington.

14 10. Defendant Nike, Inc., is a corporation incorporated under the laws of Oregon with 15 its principal place of business at One Bowerman Drive, Beaverton, OR 97005.

16 IV. FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

17 A. CEMA protects Washington consumers' interests in being free from deceptive
18 spam emails.

19 11. "[A]ll Internet users ... bear the cost of deceptive spam." State v. Heckel, 143 Wn.
20 2d 824, 835 (2001).

21 12. In 1998, the Legislature found that the "volume of commercial electronic mail" was 22 "growing," generating an "increasing number of consumer complaints." Laws of 1998, ch. 149, 23 § 1.

24 13. In the nearly three decades since, the problems caused by unsolicited commercial
25 email, a form of spam email, have only grown.

26 14. In 2003, the United States Congress found that "[m]any senders of unsolicited
27 commercial electronic mail purposefully include misleading information in the messages' subject

1 lines in order to induce the recipients to view the messages.” 15 U.S.C. § 7701(a)(8).

2 15. In 2012, one study estimated that Americans bear “costs of almost $20 billion
3 annually” due to unsolicited commercial email. Justin M. Rao & David H. Reiley, The Economics
4 of Spam, 26 J. of Econ. Perspectives 87, 88 (2012).

5 16. Even when bulk commercial email marketers are operating under color of consumer
6 consent, the reality is that “[m]ost privacy consent”—especially under the “notice-and-choice”
7 approach predominant in the United States—“is a fiction.” Daniel J. Solove, Murky Consent: An 8 Approach to the Fictions of Consent in Privacy Law, 104 Boston Univ. L. Rev. 593, 596 (2024).

9 17. Consumers therefore routinely “consent” to receive flurries of commercial emails
10 which they did not meaningfully solicit and in which they have no genuine interest, including 11 (thanks to commercial data brokers and data sharing agreements) from businesses with which they 12 have no prior relationship.

13 18. Simply conducting the routine affairs of daily life often exposes consumers to 14 unanticipated and unwanted volumes of commercial email. “Nowadays, you need an email address
15 for everything from opening a bank account to getting your dog’s nails trimmed, and ... [o]nce
16 you hand over your email address, companies often use it as an all-access pass to your inbox:
17 Think of shopping websites that send account updates, deals, ‘we miss you’ messages, and holiday
18 promotions throughout the year. It’s too much.” Kaitlyn Wells, Email Unsubscribe Services Don’t 19 Really Work, N.Y. Times Wirecutter (Aug. 19, 2024), <https://perma.cc/U8S6-R8RU/>.

20 19. The Legislature presciently intended CEMA to “provide some immediate relief” 21 for these problems by prohibiting among other things commercial emails that “contain untrue or 22 misleading information in the subject line.” Laws of 1998, ch. 149, § 1.

23 20. CEMA thereby protects Washington consumers against the “harms resulting from 24 deceptive commercial e-mails,” which “resemble the type of harms remedied by nuisance or fraud
25 actions.” Harbers v. Eddie Bauer, LLC, 415 F. Supp. 3d 999, 1008 (W.D. Wash. 2019).

26 21. CEMA’s “truthfulness requirements” increase the costs of sending deceptive
27 commercial emails and thereby reduce their volume. Heckel, 143 Wn. 2d at 836.

1 22. CEMA’s “truthfulness requirements” thereby advance the statute’s aim of 2 protecting consumers “from the problems associated with commercial bulk e-mail” while
3 facilitating commerce “by eliminating fraud and deception.” Id.

4 23. CEMA “mean[s] exactly what it says”: in “broad” but “patently clear” language,
5 CEMA unambiguously prohibits “sending Washington residents commercial e-mails that 6 contain any false or misleading information in the subject lines of such e-mails.” Certification from 7 U.S. Dist. Ct. for W. Dist. of Wash. in Brown v. Old Navy, LLC, 567 P.3d 38, 44, 46–47 (Wash.
8 2025).

9 24. CEMA’s protections do not depend on whether any email was (really or fictively)
10 solicited by consumers, nor on whether consumers relied on any false or misleading statement
11 contained in its subject line. See Harbers, 415 F. Supp. 3d at 1011.

12 25. The statute’s only concern is to suppress false or misleading information in the 13 subject line of commercial emails. See Brown, 567 P.3d at 44–45.

14 B. The subject lines of Nike’s marketing emails make false time scarcity claims.

15 26. One common way online marketers “manipulate consumer choice by inducing false 16 beliefs” is to create a false sense of urgency or to falsely claim that consumers’ time to act is scarce.
17 Fed. Trade Comm’n, Bringing Dark Patterns to Light 4 (2022), <https://perma.cc/847M-EY69/>; see
18 also U.K. Competition & Mkts. Auth., Online Choice Architecture—How Digital Design Can
19 Harm Competition and Consumers 26 (2022), <https://perma.cc/V848-7TVV/>.

20 27. The FTC has identified the “False Limited Time Message” as one example of false 21 time scarcity claims, in which the marketer creates “pressure to buy immediately by saying the 22 offer is good only for a limited time or that the deal ends soon—but without a deadline or with a
23 meaningless deadline that just resets when reached.” Bringing Dark Patters to Light, supra
24 para. 26, at 22.

25 28. False scarcity claims are psychologically effective because, as “considerable 26 evidence” suggests, “consumers react to scarcity and divert their attention to information where 27 they might miss opportunities.” Online Choice Architecture, supra para. 26, at 26.

1 29. Time pressure “induces consumers to rely on heuristics (mental shortcuts), like
2 limiting focus to a restricted set of attributes or deciding based on habit.” Id. (footnote call numbers
3 omitted).

4 30. Under time pressure, “consumers might take up an offer to minimise the uncertainty
5 of passing it up.” Id.

6 31. False time scarcity claims harm consumers by manipulatively distorting their 7 decision-making to their detriment.

8 32. One 2019 experimental study found that “customers who took timed deals rather 9 than waiting to see wider options ended up worse off than those who waited.” Id. at 27.

10 33. False time scarcity claims also harm market competition. Consumers learn to ignore 11 scarcity claims, “meaning that when a product [or offer] is truly scarce, the seller will not be able 12 to credibly communicate this information.” Id.

13 34. Despite the harm they cause, false time scarcity claims are a staple of Nike’s email
14 marketing practices.

15 35. For example, on June 10, 2022, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “2 days
16 only: Save up to 50% 🤩”. This subject line states that discounts of up to 50 percent will be 17 available for two days, June 10 and June 11, as confirmed by the body of the email.

18 36. The subject line of the June 10 email was false or misleading. As subsequent emails
19 illustrate, Nike intended to and did extend the same offer until June 18.

20 37. On June 12, the day after the “up to 50%” off offer was supposed to end, Nike sent 21 an email with the subject line, “Save up to 50% on new markdowns 🎉”. The body of the email
22 represented that the “up to 50%” off offer was good through June 18.

23 38. On June 18, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “New markdowns going fast
24 🏃”. But the products were not in fact “going fast”; as the body of the email reveals, the email
25 was simply announcing the conclusion of the June 10 through June 18 “up to 50%” off sale.

26 39. For another example, on July 9, 2023, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “The 27 Ultimate Sale starts now 🎉”. The body of the email announced a sale of “up to 60%” off.

1 40. On July 15, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “THE Ultimate Sale Ends
2 tonight: Save up to 60% 🎉”.

3 41. The subject line of the July 15 email was false or misleading. As subsequent emails
4 illustrate, Nike intended to and did extend the same offer for almost an entire month, until
5 August 12.

6 42. On July 16, the day after the “Ultimate Sale” was to end according to the subject
7 line of the July 15 email, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “[Name], one extra day to save
8 🌟”. The body of the email announced the extension for “an extra day” of the “Ultimate Sale.”

9 43. On August 4, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “Two days left to save 🎉”.
10 The body of the email extended the same “up to 60%” off offer as the “Ultimate Sale,” now
11 rebranded as the “Back to School Sale.”

12 44. The subject line of the August 4 email was false or misleading. As subsequent 13 emails illustrate, Nike intended to and did extend the same offer for more than a week, until 14 August 12.

15 45. On August 6, the day after the “up to 60%” off sale was to end according to the 16 subject line of the August 4 email, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “We’re not done yet—17 save up to 60% 🙌”.

18 46. On August 12, nearly a month after the initial July 15 email, Nike sent an email
19 with the subject line, “Back to School Sale ends TONIGHT 🕒”. This email finally brought to 20 conclusion the “up to 60%” off sale announced in the July 15 email’s subject line as ending that 21 day.

22 47. For another example, Nike announced its 2024 “Black Friday” sale on 23 November 17, 2024, by sending an email with the subject line, “Early Access to Black Friday is 24 here”. The body of the email announced a sale of “up to 60% off.”

25 48. Nike’s Black Friday email marketing continued with further emails on 26 November 20, November 23, November 24, November 28, and November 29 (the date of Black 27 Friday).

1 49. On November 30, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “Only a few hours left”.
2 The body of the email indicated that the subject line referred to the “up to 60% off” Black Friday
3 sale.

4 50. The subject line of the November 30 email was false or misleading. As subsequent 5 emails illustrate, Nike intended to and did extend the same offer for another week, until 6 December 7.

7 51. On December 1, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “Cyber Monday is here”.
8 The body of the email extended the same “up to 60% off” offer as the Black Friday sale, now
9 rebranded as the “Cyber Monday” sale.

10 52. The subject line of the December 1 email was false or misleading, as it implied that 11 the offer contained in the email’s body was for a one-day “Cyber Monday” event. As subsequent 12 emails illustrate, Nike intended to and did extend the same offer for almost another week, until 13 December 7.

14 53. On December 3, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “Cyber Monday
15 continues”. The body of the email made the same “up to 60% off” offer Nike had been making 16 since November 17.

17 54. On December 7, Nike sent an email with the subject line, “Jump on these deals”.
18 This email finally brought to conclusion the “up to 60% off” sale announced in the November 17
19 email’s subject line, represented as ending in “a few hours” in the November 30 email’s subject
20 line, and implied to be ending again in the December 1 email’s subject line.

21 55. An index of Nike’s commercial emails whose subject lines contain false or 22 misleading statements that investigation has uncovered to date is attached to this Class Action
23 Complaint as Exhibit A.

24 C. Nike knows or has reason to know when it sends marketing emails to addresses
25 held by Washington residents.

26 56. As a sophisticated commercial enterprise engaged in mass email marketing, Nike
27 has several ways of knowing where the recipients of its marketing emails are located. The means

1 it employs are peculiarly with its knowledge.

2 57. First, the sheer volume of Nike’s email marketing (averaging 475 separate pieces
3 per year between 2014 and 2024, or 1.3 per day, sent to a mailing list numbering at minimum in 4 the thousands) put it on notice that Washington residents would receive its emails.

5 58. Second, Nike may obtain location information tied to email addresses when 6 consumers make purchases from Nike through digital platforms, including Nike’s website, or 7 otherwise self-report such information to Nike.

8 59. Third, Nike may obtain location information tied to email addresses by tracking the 9 IP addresses of devices used to open Nike’s emails, which in turn can be correlated to physical 10 location (as illustrated, for example, by the website <https://whatismyipaddress.com/>).

11 60. Specifically, Nike appears to use Salesforce Marketing Cloud to manage its email
12 marketing campaigns. This platform allows Nike to identify anyone who receives its marketing 13 emails, determine who opens them, and track who clicks on any links within them.

14 61. Nike is likely able to infer the general geographic location of recipients by state
15 based on their IP address at the time of email open or link click.

16 62. Fourth, Nike may obtain location information tied to email addresses by purchasing
17 consumer data from commercial data brokers such as Acxiom, Oracle, and Equifax, which sell
18 access to databases linking email addresses to physical locations, among other identifiers.

19 63. Fifth, Nike may obtain location information tied to email addresses by using 20 “identity resolution” services offered by companies such as LiveRamp, which can connect
21 consumers’ email addresses to their physical locations, among other identifiers.

22 64. Sixth, Nike may obtain information that the recipients of its marketing emails are 23 Washington residents because that information is available, upon request, from the registrant of 24 the Internet domain names contained in the recipients’ email addresses. See RCW 19.190.020(2).

25 65. It is highly improbable that a seller of Nike’s size and sophistication employs no
26 means of tying consumers’ email addresses to their physical locations, at least at the state level.

27

1 73. The Class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable because the
2 Class is estimated to contain thousands of members.

3 74. There are questions of law or fact common to the class, including without limitation
4 whether Defendant sent commercial emails containing false or misleading information in the 5 subject line; whether Defendant sent such emails to email addresses it knew or had to reason to 6 know were held by Washington residents; whether Defendant violated CEMA; whether
7 Defendant's violation of CEMA constituted a per se violation of the Consumer Protection Act,
8 RCW 19.86.020 (CPA); and whether Defendant should be enjoined from such conduct.

9 75. Plaintiff's claims are typical of the Class's because, among other reasons, Plaintiff
10 and Class members share the same statutory rights under CEMA and the CPA, which Defendant
11 violated in the same way by the same false or misleading marketing messages.

12 76. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately protect the Class's interests because, among 13 other reasons, Plaintiff shares the Class's interest in avoiding unlawful false or misleading
14 marketing; has no interest adverse to the Class; and has retained competent counsel experienced 15 in consumer protection and class action litigation.

16 77. Defendant has acted on grounds generally applicable to the Class, in that, among 17 other ways, it has sent the same commercial emails to Plaintiff and the Class, which violate CEMA
18 and the CPA in the same way, and from which it may be enjoined as to Plaintiff and all Class
19 members, thereby making appropriate final injunctive relief with respect to the Class as a whole.

20 78. The questions of law or fact common to the members of the Class predominate over 21 any questions affecting only individual members, in that, among other ways, Defendant has 22 violated their rights under the same laws by the same conduct, and the only matters for individual
23 determination are the number of false or misleading emails received by each Class member and 24 that Class member's resulting damages.

25 79. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient
26 adjudication of the controversy because, among other reasons, the claims at issue may be too small 27 to justify individual litigation and management of this action on a class basis presents no special

1 difficulties.

2 VI. CLAIMS TO RELIEF

3 First Claim to Relief

4 Violation of the Commercial Electronic Mail Act, RCW 19.190.020

5 80. Plaintiff incorporates and realleges paragraphs 1–69 above.

8 message ... to an electronic mail address that the sender knows, or has reason to know, is held by
9 a Washington resident that ... [c]ontains false or misleading information in the subject line.”
10 RCW 19.190.020(1)(b).

11 82. Defendant is a “person” within the meaning of CEMA. RCW 19.190.010(11).

12 83. Defendant initiated the transmission, conspired with another to initiate the 13 transmission, or assisted the transition of “commercial electronic mail messages” within the 14 meaning of CEMA. RCW 19.190.010(2).

15 84. Defendant initiated the transmission, conspired with another to initiate the 16 transmission, or assisted the transmission of such messages to electronic mail addresses that
17 Defendant knew, or had reason to know, were held by Washington residents.

18 85. Defendant initiated the transmission, conspired with another to initiate the
19 transmission, or assisted the transmission of such messages that contained false or misleading
20 information in the subject line in violation of CEMA. RCW 19.190.020(1)(b).

21 86. For Defendant’s violation of CEMA, Plaintiff is entitled to an injunction against 22 further violations.

23 Second Claim to Relief

24 Violation of the Consumer Protection Act, RCW 19.86.020

25 87. Plaintiff incorporates and realleges paragraphs 1–69 above.

26 88. The CPA provides that “[u]nfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive 27 acts or practices in the conduct of any trade or commerce are hereby declared unlawful.”

1 RCW 19.86.020.

2 89. A violation of CEMA is a per se violation of the CPA. RCW 19.190.030.

3 90. A violation of CEMA establishes all the elements necessary to bring a private action
4 under the CPA. Wright v. Lyft, 189 Wn. 2d 718 (2017).

5 91. CEMA provides that “[n]o person may initiate the transmission, conspire with 6 another to initiate the transmission, or assist the transmission, of a commercial electronic mail
7 message ... to an electronic mail address that the sender knows, or has reason to know, is held by
8 a Washington resident that ... [c]ontains false or misleading information in the subject line.”
9 RCW 19.190.020(1)(b).

10 92. Defendant is a “person” within the meaning of CEMA. RCW 19.190.010(11).

11 93. Defendant initiated the transmission, conspired with another to initiate the 12 transmission, or assisted the transition of “commercial electronic mail messages” within the
13 meaning of CEMA. RCW 19.190.010(2).

14 94. Defendant initiated the transmission, conspired with another to initiate the
15 transmission, or assisted the transmission of such messages to electronic mail addresses that
16 Defendant knew, or had reason to know, were held by Washington residents.

17 95. Defendant initiated the transmission, conspired with another to initiate the
18 transmission, or assisted the transmission of such messages that contained false or misleading
19 information in the subject line in violation of CEMA. RCW 19.190.020(1)(b).

20 96. For Defendant’s violation of the CPA, Plaintiff is entitled to an injunction against 21 further violations; the greater of Plaintiff’s actual damages or liquidated damages of $500 per 22 violation, trebled; and costs of the suit, including a reasonable attorney’s fee.

23 VII. JURY DEMAND

24 97. Plaintiff will demand a jury trial by separate document in accordance with Local 25 Civil Rule 38(b).

27

1 VIII. PRAYER FOR RELIEF

2 Plaintiff asks that the Court

3 A. Certify the proposed Class, appoint Plaintiff as Class representative, and appoint
4 undersigned counsel as Class counsel;

5 B. Enter a judgment in Plaintiff’s and the Class’s favor permanently enjoining
6 Defendant from the unlawful conduct alleged;

7 C. Enter a judgment in Plaintiff’s and the Class’s favor awarding actual or liquidated
